NEWS BRIEFS

Windows XP Push

Pacific Air Forces officials directed a migration to Windows XP and Office 2003 that began Monday and continues through September. Client support administrators will receive weekly listing of machines due to be converted. Prior to the conversion, Airmen should back up all their essential data in the My Documents folder and PST onto a compact disk or the backup server. Details were already e-mailed to all Wolf Pack members.

Father's Day Messages

The Wolf Pack Warrior will post Father's Day messages in the June 17 edition. Airmen or families wishing to submit a message to their fathers at home or at Kunsan should e-mail the newspaper editor at juanika.glover@kunsan.af.mil. The first 45 messages received will be published. Messages must be no more than 65 words. First and last names of fathers and the person submitting the message should be included.

Home Visitation Cancellation

The Korean Red Cross Home Visitation Program scheduled for June 25 is cancelled. Because most of the hosts families children have upcoming school exams, timing was not right for visitation. Red Cross officials will rescheduled the visitations for September.

New Sonlight Inn Hours

The Sonlight Inn opens from 6 p.m. to 10 p.m. Tuesdays through Thursdays, 6 p.m. to midnight Fridays and Saturdays and 4 p.m. to midnight on holidays. It closes on Mondays and is open for chapel fellowship all day Sunday. For more information, call Airman 1st Class Celina Dominguez at 782-4300 regarding the change in hours.

Weapons Fest, Competition

Load crew teams from Kunsan face off against the Osan Air Base's load crew Saturday at 11 a.m. The competition will be held between Hangar 1 and 2. Following the competition a weapons fest will be held from noon to 6 p.m. in the large pavilion area between building 1407 and 1409. This is a yearly fest that involves aircraft armament specialist from the entire peninsula.

SPREADING THE WORD

With brochures in hand, hundreds of Wolf Pack troops wait outside the base theater to hear the latest information regarding the military's anthrax vaccination program. Members at Kunsan continue to qualify to receive the six-shot series as part of a recent emergency use authorization plan. Under the current program, military members may accept or decline to take the shots without facing disciplinary or adverse personnel actions, according to Lt. Col. Ross Van Camp, 8th Medical Group director of aerospace medicine. People who choose not to receive the shots continue to qualify for deployments but remain vulnerable to the serious threat of the bacteria, which is 99 percent lethal if inhaled in its weaponized form, the colonel added.

Harassment gets zero tolerance

By Gen. Paul Hester
Pacific Air Forces commander

Zero tolerance is our Air Force policy on discrimination and harassment. Nevertheless, I continue to see and hear about situations in which some of our Airmen discriminate against or harass other Airmen. They range from seemingly innocuous jokes or comments to work place favoritism or outright assault. The truth is, there is nothing innocuous about such behavior. It is simply, misconduct and the purpose of this message is to re-enforce your personal involvement to end it.

When our freedom is threatened, as today in our ongoing efforts with the global war on terrorism, it is especially important we work together as an Air Force team. Our effectiveness and success depend on each Airman living and working to his or her maximum potential. When meeting with your Airmen during trips to your bases, I try to make the point that it’s hard for some Airmen to feel they are part of our team when others drive them away through discriminatory or harassing behavior. We owe them and the rest of the Air Force our very best efforts to immediately stop such behavior whenever and wherever we see it or experience it.

“It’s hard for some Airmen to feel they are part of our team when others drive them away through discriminatory behavior.”

— Gen. Paul Hester
Pacific Air Force commander

I need you to communicate my zero tolerance policy to our Airmen. First, I will not tolerate discrimination or harassment in any form or any degree. Second, in return, I expect our Airmen to report or stop such misconduct when they see or experience it. Third, as commanders, we need to respond immediately, apply necessary remedies to help victims recover and let the full weight of the hammer of discipline fall squarely on the perpetrators. I need your active support of these three principles so our Pacific Air Forces Team will be as strong as the collective potential of our PACAF Airmen. Protect the team!

Without thinking, we’re lucky to be alive

By Staff Sgt. Don Branam
50th Space Wing Public Affairs

SCHRIEVER AIR FORCE BASE, Colo. — Our office recently had a safety briefing with a different flavor. Every other safety or operational risk management briefing I have sat through was vanilla: “Don’t drink and drive. Only drive eight hours per day. See you next week, etc.”

This briefing was a sundae instead. Each of us had to relate a story about something we had done that might not have happened if we had thought about it before doing it — simple risk management. My story was about fatigued driving. I was a member of the honor guard at my last base and was responsible for driving the other 11 people in our funeral detail to and from the ceremony. We had finished the detail and were on our way back. Most of the people in the back of the van were asleep, exhausted from wearing service dress uniforms in the scorching heat and oppressive humidity. I was just as exhausted, but too proud to admit it or ask for someone else to drive. The van began to drift toward the right side of the road the second or third time my eyes drooped. We all were extremely lucky I woke up when the front right tire scraped along the side of the pavement. We each shared our own harrowing tale. As we listened, we took notes about what we thought contributed to each person’s situation. We chuckled as we scribbled down ‘foolhardiness,’ ‘lack of training’ or ‘lack of preparation.’ Even as we laughed, though, we learned. Our group was small, but we each had a story that could have ended tragically. The most important lesson I came away with is this: If you do not determine the consequences of your decision before you make it, you’ll be lucky to survive the experience. Risk management has to be more than a dusty copy of an Air Force instruction. It has to be more than an annual training requirement. It must be a constant and conscious method you use to make decisions. It is better to be smart than lucky. Be prepared, know your limits, know your surroundings and be safe. Your life depends on it.

Cultural Corner

Did you know? Aegukga is the national anthem of South Korea. The title literally means “The Song of Love for the Country”.
Until the East Sea’s waves are dry, (and) Mt. Baekdusan worn away,
God watch o’er our land forever, our nation eternal!
Like a Mt. Namsan armored pine, standing on duty still, wind or frost, unchanging ever, be our resolute will.
In autumn’s, arching evening sky, crystal and cloudless blue, be the radiant moon our spirit, steadfast, single and true.
With such a will, (and) such a spirit, loyalty, heart and hand, let us love, come grief, come gladness, this our beloved land!
Rose of Sharon, thousand miles of range and river land! Guarded by her people, ever may Korea stand!

The original words of Aegukga appeared in a written form around 1907 to inculcate allegiance to the nation and foster the spirit of independence as the country faced threats of foreign annexation. During the Japanese Colonial Period (1910-1945), the song was banned, but overseas Koreans continued to sing it, expressing their yearnings for national independence. Before the birth of the Republic in 1948, the words were often sung to the tune of the Scottish folk song, Auld Lang Syne. Maestro Ahn Eak-tay (1905-1965), then living in Spain, felt that it was inappropriate to sing this patriotic song to the tune of another country’s folk song. So, he composed new music to go with the lyrics in 1935, and the Korean Provisional Government in exile adopted it as the national anthem. Koreans at home continued to use Auld Lang Syne till after Korea was liberated in 1945. The Republic of Korea Government in 1948 officially adopted the new version as the national anthem . Airmen check a F-117 A stealth fighter here. Approximately 250 Airmen arrived last week as part of an Air Expeditionary Force. Their deployment is part of a routine training rotation.

F-117 Night-hawks return to Kunsan

By 8th Fighter Wing Public Affairs

Approximately 250 Airmen and about 15 F-117A Nighthawk jets from the 49th Fighter Wing from Holloman Air Force Base, New Mexico, arrived here last week as part of an Air Expeditionary Forces rotation.

The routine training deployment, which is part of the normal AEF rotation schedule for the Air Force, represents the third time that Holloman AFB personnel and aircraft have deployed to Kunsan AB since 2003. This standard AEF deployment, which typically lasts for about four months, provides F-117 pilots and crews with the opportunity to train alongside F-16 Fighting Falcon aircraft and conduct operations in a deployed environment that incorporates a variety of weather conditions.

In addition to providing training, the AEF deployment also tests the unit's ability to manage the movement of people and assets and demonstrates the continued U.S. commitment toward fulfilling security responsibilities throughout the Western Pacific.

The F-117A is a single-sea attack plane with high-tech design features that make it hard for radar to pick up. It can penetrate deep into enemy airspace. The war plane can place satellite and laser-guided munitions onto time-sensitive, high value targets.

Japanese, South Korean ministers discuss North's nuclear program

Officials call on North Korea to return to Six-Party talks

By Jim Garamone
American Forces Press Service

SINGAPORE— Korean and Japanese defense ministers Saturday called on North Korea to return to the Six-Party Talks aimed at ending North Korea's push for nuclear weapons.

Yoshinori Ohno, the Japanese minister of state for defense, and Yoon Kwang Ung, the Korean minister for national defense, expressed confidence that North Korea will return to the talks. Both agreed that all nations of the region must exert pressure on North Korea, and that the problem with North Korea must be negotiated.

The men spoke at the Shangri-La Dialogue here. The International Institute of Strategic Studies sponsors the annual defense conference.

On Feb. 10, North Korea said that it possessed nuclear weapons. The country had broken away from the agreed framework negotiated in 1994, and had begun uranium enrichment in October 2003. China, Russia, Japan, South Korea and the United States worked to negotiate a settlement with the north on nuclear disarmament and weapons proliferation.

Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld meets with Philippines Minister of Defense Avelino Cruz and other Asian ministers prior to a bilateral meeting during the fourth International Institute for Strategic Studies Asia Security Conference. During the conference Japanese and Korean defense ministers called upon North Korea to return to the Six-Party talks regarding nuclear weapons.

tion. North Korea walked away from the talks, and the five nations have been trying to get the insular country to return to the discussions.

Ung said the Republic of Korea will not "tolerate a nuclear weapons development program by the North Koreans under any circumstances whatsoever," and that the North Korean nuclear issue "must be peacefully resolved through dialogue."

He said South Korea will continue to use inter-Korean channels to reason with North Korea. He said possession of nuclear weapons will not guarantee regime stability and will worsen North Korea's political and economic isolation.

Ohno said the situation in North Korea is one of the most serious security concerns in Asia. He said the country is developing nuclear weapons and has a track record of missile proliferation. He said there is real frustration in Japan over North Korea's nuclear program and North Korea's kidnapping of Japanese citizens.

"The immediate and unconditional return of North Korea to the Six-Party Talks is of the utmost importance, and is a first step toward North Korea becoming a responsible member of the international community," Ohno said. "The countries concerned will have to make sincere efforts to urge North Korea to open its doors, keep its promises and observe international rules."

Both men said the resolution of the situation is important for the region. Ung said that a peaceful settlement of the North Korean nuclear issue "will not only be a cornerstone for security on the Korean Peninsula, but also another foundation for regional stability and world peace."

Earthtech, contracted by the Air Force Center for Environmental Excellence completed a source water vulnerability assessment report for the Okku reservoir and city of Gunsan water system in January of 2005. This assessment summarizes the potential for contamination of the base's source of drinking water and was used as the basis for developing the Wolf Pack's source water protection plan.

The report is designed to inform Kunsan members about the quality water Wolf Pack members receive. The report also helps people understand the efforts being made to continually improve the water treatment process and protect water resources.

A variety of contaminants that may be present in source water. Microbial contaminants such as viruses and bacteria, may come from sewage treatment plants, septic systems, agricultural livestock operations, and wildlife; inorganic contaminants such as salts and metals, can be naturally occurring or result from urban storm water runoff, industrial and domestic wastewater discharges, oil and gas production, mining and farming. Pesticides and herbicides which may come from a variety of sources such as agriculture, urban storm water runoff and residential uses; organic chemical contaminants including synthetic and volatile organic chemicals, which are by-products of industrial processes and petroleum production and can also come from gas stations, urban storm water runoff, and septic systems; Radioactive contaminants which can be naturally occurring or the result of oil and gas production and mining activities.

All drinking water, including bottled water, may reasonably be expected to contain at least small amounts of some contaminants.

The presence of contaminants does not necessarily indicate the water poses a health risk. More information about contaminants and potential health effects can be obtained by calling the Environmental Protection Agency's Safe Drinking Water Hotline at 1-800-426-4791 or by visiting their website at <http://www.epa.gov/ebtpages/watedrinking-water.html>.

The 2004 Korean Environmental Governing Standards, or KEGS, regulate the testing, quality, and quantity of contaminants that are allowed in the water system. To obtain a copy of these standards, contact bioenvironmental engineering element at 782-4670 or civil engineering customer service at 782-5313.

Kunsan Air Base routinely monitors for constituents in the drinking water according to federal law and the Korean environmental governing standards. The following table shows the results of monitoring for the period of Jan. 1 to Dec. 31, 2004.

Don't get 'soaked' over carelessness

Contributed by Staff Sgt. Kevin Tucker
8th Aircraft Maintenance Squadron

As temperatures increase, our thoughts to participate in water sports do as well. Summer is right around the corner, and it's time to think about water safety whether planning a trip to the beach, mid-tour home or visiting the community pool. As we approach the fourth week in the 101 Critical Days of Summer campaign, now is no time to lose focus. The following is a list of tips that will help keep Airmen safe this summer:

- ♦ Always swim with a buddy; never swim alone.
- ♦ Swim in supervised areas only.
- ♦ Obey all rules and posted signs.
- ♦ Watch out for the 'dangerous too's' — too tired, too cold, too far from safety, too much sun, or too much strenuous activity.

- ♦ Don't mix alcohol and swimming.

Alcohol impairs judgment, balance and coordination, affects swimming and diving skills, and reduces the body's ability to stay warm.

- ♦ Pay attention to local weather conditions and forecasts. Stop swimming at the first sign of bad weather.
- ♦ Know how to prevent, recognize and respond to emergencies.

The Air Force provides may be the one thing you have to rely on in threatening situations. Know about water safety now while be ready to apply it to any scenario.

I'd rather be talking with you than about you. Have an enjoyable and safe summer.

Col. Eric Best, right, accepts command of the 8th Operations Group from 8th Fighter Wing Commander Col. Brian Bishop during a ceremony June 3.

Face to face with the Viper

Kunsan remains motivated team according to new ops group leader

Editor's Note: Col. Eric Best took command of the 8th Operations Group in a ceremony June 3. The Wolf Pack Warrior recently sat down with the colonel for his initial impressions of the group and its people.

Wolf Pack Warrior: Now that you've had a chance to readjust to life in Korea, what are your impressions of the Wolf Pack and 8th Operations Group?

Colonel Best: "I'm impressed by the motivation and energy the people have here. It's just great to see. I'm (also) impressed with all the improvements to the facilities and infrastructure here. I can see where it makes a huge difference with quality of life, and that's really important."

WPW: What do you see as the major challenges facing the 8th Operations Group, and how will group meet and overcome these obstacles?

Colonel Best: "Within the Department of Defense, as a whole, we're under some real fiscal and monetary constraints, and that's having an impact. Air Force Chief of Staff Gen. (John) Jumper ... says we may have to live with lower quality of life because of these fiscal constraints."

"I think that's going to be a huge issue to overcome because we ask a lot out of our Airmen. Historically, we've been able to say, 'We are asking a lot of you, but we're doing a lot of things to take care of you.' As those things potentially dwindle a little bit, it's going to be harder to keep people motivated to do the work that they are doing."

"More locally ... we continue to fly hard, and we have a real mission that we need to do every day. So it's going to continue to be a challenge just to keep the airplanes flying and the people trained and equipped all across the board. We continue to get a lot of new blood into the service, and we have to train them and make sure they're ready to go."

WPW: What course do you expect to set for the 8th Operations Group over the next 12 months?

Colonel Best: "We're going to continue to speed ahead full. The ops group has done great. They've showed that they are very successful and good at what they do, and we're going to continue to move along in the same course. What we're really going to do is build on what is accomplished so far (along with) some combined training with the (Republic

Current books on his nightstand: "Death By Meeting" and "First Break All the Rules"

Favorite sports team: "I'm a (Philadelphia) Eagles fan because I'm from near that area and grew up watching the Eagles."

Favorite music group or performer: The colonel enjoys rock 'n' roll as well as classic rock. One of his favorite rock groups is U2.

Pet peeve: "Rude people ... I don't like rude people."

Personal secret: "If I told you that, then it wouldn't be a secret about me (laughs)."

of Korea Air Force). We're going to continue to expand on the joint and combined training opportunities that we have on the ROK and improve the quality of the training so we reap the benefits in the future."

WPW: How do you define your leadership philosophy?

Colonel Best: "I like to let people know what the objective is and provide them the general guidance to press forward. Then I make sure they have the tools, equipment and training that it takes and then let them run a thousand miles an hour toward that goal. If you let talented people use their talents, they will be successful."

WPW: What advice do you have for your Airmen?

Colonel Best: "If they start with the Air Force core values and work from that they will have all the foundation they need to be successful. Don't sacrifice your integrity for any reason. By mere virtue of being here, (people at Kunsan) are already demonstrating the willingness to put service before self."

"The last thing (excellence in all we do) is probably the most critical because we don't sign up for mediocrity. We're all about excellence, so if you just put your best foot forward and do the best you can do, then good things naturally flow from that."

Wolf Pack men crush Suwon

By Master Sgt. Brian Orban
8th Fighter Wing Public Affairs Office

Information for this story was compiled from coaches’ reports. For more information on how to submit game results in the Wolf Pack Warrior, call the newspaper office at 782-4705.

Wolf Pack crushes Suwon

Solid hitting at the plate gave the Wolf Pack men a distinct advantage as they shut out the men of Suwon on the road during varsity softball action Saturday and Sunday.

James “Dirtdobber” Tadlock played four flawless games and went 14 for 14 with two home runs during the weekend as the Wolf Pack thumped Suwon 31-2, 25-5, 21-0 and 32-2. Jarred “Rookie” Messinger also helped the Wolf Pack men going 11 for 12 at the plate with one home run.

“We jumped on them in the first inning and kept putting runs on the board,” said Wolf Pack coach Donnie Morris. “We overwhelmed them with our run scoring production.”

The Wolf Pack men and women travel to Seoul on Saturday and Sunday to face off against Yongsan Garrison then hosts Osan Air Base on June 18 and 19. In other sports news, Osan hosts this year’s Republic of Korea 4th of July varsity level tournament.

Medics claim volleyball title

Sarah Strube set eight consecutive kills as the Untouchables of the 8th Medical Group claimed the base intramural volleyball crown as they faced off against the 8th Maintenance Squadron during the base championship game held recently.

After the Untouchables made short work of the Maintainers with a 24-18 win in the first game, Leonard Myers served 14 consecutive points in the decisive second game to clinch the match and volleyball crown with a 25-8 victory.

“Teamwork was the greatest factor. We avoided any simple mistakes, and we were always looking out for each other,” said Untouchables coach Edgardo Santos.

The Untouchables turned the first game around after Strube was hit in the face from a Maintainers’ spike at the net.

“After that little incident, the team pulled together,” Santos said. “From that point on, MXS wasn’t able to spike the ball or get easy points. Our team defense was second to none ... We made sure that the others teams really work for it.”

Others on the Untouchables squad included Quinella Purks, Douglass Suddueth, Billy Cole, Jose Pluguez, Duska Rowe, Jamie Slate and Anthony Jones.

Staff Sgt. Michelle McMenamin, 8th Services Squadron, uses a radio arm saw to cut a block of wood at the base skills development center. Airmen are taught how to use cutting or woodworking equipment at the hobby shop before they can begin woodworking projects. The hobby shop holds wood safety classes the third Saturday of every month.

CRAFTY CRAFTSMEN-

Hobby shop provides skills or equipment for every pastime

Tech. Sgt. Eric Swant, 8th Maintenance Squadron, measures two pieces of wood to ensure they are the same size. He spends some of his spare time at the hobby shop working on different projects.

Sgt. McMenamin uses a 'jointer' to even out the edges of a block of wood she just cut. The jointer will ensure the wood is cut to exact specifications.
